"I'll give you some. . . angehen, is that all right? But you don't know what it is, do you?". They walked a half-mile or so. The Knoll rose up full in the western sun on their right. Behind them the School sprawled grey and many-roofed on its lower hill. The grove of trees towered before them now. She saw oak and willow, chestnut and ash, and tall evergreens. From the dense, sun-shot darkness of the trees a stream ran out, green-banked, with many brown trodden places where cattle and sheep went down to drink or to cross over. They had come through the stile from a pasture where fifty or sixty sheep grazed the short, bright turf, and now stood near the stream. That house," said the mage, pointing to a low, moss-ridden roof half-hidden by the afternoon shadows of the trees. "Stay tonight. You will?". This language is innate to dragons, not to humans, as said above. There are exceptions. A few human beings with a powerful gift of magic, or through the ancient kinship of humans and dragons, know some words of the Old Speech innately. But the very great majority of people must learn the Old Speech. Hardic practitioners of the art magic learn it from their teachers. Sorcerers and witches learn a few words of it; wizards learn many, and some come to speak it almost as fluently as the dragons do. Others they said, "Ember can tell you." She refused his question, not arrogantly but definitely, scared cow. "Quite soon now, I think. Can you hold the Gates open, my dear?" All he saw was a mist on the water, all across the sea beyond the mouth of the bay. As he watched, know . . . After a while the Patterner said, "That art, summoning, you know, is very . . . terrible. How could any of them keep their balance in a place like that?. As he left the battlefield it began to rain, and he saw his enemy's true name written in raindrops. Religion was a unifying element even among the most warlike tribes. There were hundreds of Truce Places on the Four Lands, where no warfare or dispute was permitted. Kargish religion was a domestic and community worship of the Old Powers, the chthonic or gaeian forces manifest as spirits of place. They were worshiped at the site and at home altars with offerings of flowers, oil, food, dances, races, sacrifices, carvings, songs, music, and silence. Worship was both casual and ritual, private and communal. There was no priesthood; any adult could perform the ceremonies and teach children to do so. This ancient spiritual practice has continued, unofficially and sometimes in hiding, under the newer, institutional religions of the Twin Gods and the Godking. And the boy must have a staff. Why had Nemmerle let him leave Roke without one, empty-handed as a. there was any on the island." He examined it attentively, and put some seedpods into his pouch. One day in autumn he came back to the school. He went in by the garden door, which gives on the path through the fields to Roke Knoll. It is a curious thing about the Great House of Roke, that it has no portal or grand entryway at all. You can enter by what they call the back door, which, though it is made of horn and framed in dragons tooth and carved with the Thousand-Leaved Tree, looks like nothing at all from outside, as you come to it in a dingy street; or you can go in the garden door, plain oak with an iron bolt. But there is no front door. "I doubt the Doorkeeper would defy it lightly," said one of them Irian had not noticed till he. "Set a price?" he flashed out. Then he remembered who he was not, and spoke humbly. "No. I. "A NAMEDAY PARTY," said Golden. "Time for a bit of play, a bit of music and dancing, boy. Nineteen years old. Celebrate it!" Losen shouted, beating his paralyzed legs with his weak hands. The house vanished. No walls, no roof, nobody.
